Sparbanken Västra Mälardalen has signed the UN Principles for Responsible Banking

Sustainability has always been important and fundamental for Sparbanken Västra Mälardalen. "Our work with sustainability goes all the way back to when our bank was founded, in 1845. To be the seventh bank from Sweden to become a Signatory of the global Principles for Responsible Banking is fantastic", says Mikael Bohman, CEO of Sparbanken Västra Mälardalen.

Signing the Principles for Responsible Banking means that Sparbanken Västra Mälardalen commits to analysing its impact on environment and society, and on the people living in this society.

- Based on the analysis we also identify goals. This is a long-term work for our bank, and it enables us to embed sustainability across all our business areas, says Mikael Bohman.

The commitment means that Sparbanken Västra Mälardalen will contribute to the UN Sustainable Development Goals and the 2015 Paris Climate Agreement. Seven of the seventeen UN Sustainable Development Goals will be extra prioritized in the bank's work with regional development, associations, projects, and initiatives, through the bank's excessive work with corporate social responsibility (CSR).

- Our bank has always worked with sustainability. Signing the global Principles for Responsible Banking means an upgrade of our work with sustainability. The signing also means that we will contribute in our best possible ways to the UN Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Climate Agreement, says Mikael Bohman.
