Skurups Sparbank signs the UN's Principles for Responsible Banking

For 140 years, Skurups Sparbank has been a part of the local community by investing in and working close to the local market and its customers. In connection with its 140th birthday, the bank signs the UN's Principles for Responsible Banking.

By signing the UN's principles for responsible banking, Skurups Sparbank undertakes to strengthen its positive impact and at the same time reduce the negative impact that the bank may have on society and the environment.

- As a local savings bank, we have an important role to play in enabling and accelerating development into a more sustainable society. Our conviction is that if we work with our customers for a more sustainable society, Skurup and the surrounding area will be an even better place to live and work in, says the bank's CEO Inga-Lill Hellberg.

Skurup Sparbank's sustainability work is based on three main perspectives

- Economic sustainability - by promoting a healthy and sustainable economy.
- Social sustainability - by contributing to our area of activity developing and remaining a living and interesting place to live and work in.
- Ecological sustainability - by contributing to the sustainable use of the earth's finite resources.

As the 12th bank in Sweden, Skurups Sparbank signs the UN's principles for responsible banking.

The UN's Principles for Responsible Banking are a framework for ensuring that the banks' strategy and practices are in line with the visions of the Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Agreement. Banks that have signed the Principles undertake to be ambitious in their sustainability strategies and to work to integrate sustainability into the heart of their business.
